1. The Leipzig Fair is generally regarded within the DMK as an utter failure. There was a lack of interest on the part of exhibitors, and many firms were not even represented. Foreign visitors were extremely scarce. A special bus carrying visitors from Switzerland was seen. A few business men from the Netherlands, Sweden, and Norway attended, as well as from the Balkans.
2. The widely publicized "Koffernähmaschine", a portable sewing machine, which was mentioned as the sensation of the Leipzig Fair, is made by Ernst Thälmann Werke in Suhl. But instead of 23,000 machines being sold as stated in the press, there were only 1,800 sold.
3. Porcelain and ceramics sold at the Leipzig Fair amounted to 2,500,000 marks' worth.
